

Working Together – We’re More Than OK!

2023 ANNUAL CONFERENCE – OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA

JUNE 11 – 14, 2023

Here’s a special preview of one of the sessions featured in the upcoming 2023 NCSLA Annual Conference Program:

PANEL #10: Pain in the Glass - Recycling Programs in the Alcohol Industry

Plastic, Aluminum, and Glass, Oh My! More and more states and local jurisdictions are looking to either curb the use of these types of containers, place a deposit on the containers, or add a fee on producers to “encourage” recycling of the materials used in packaging products, and alcoholic beverages are not excluded. Manufacturers of alcoholic beverages are strategically moving towards sustainable practices, but governments around the country believe more can be done. States are implementing or extending bottle deposit laws, extended producer responsibility (EPR) programs, and post-consumer recycled content requirements.

Do they work or are they just recycled bad thoughts? How will these laws affect the alcoholic beverage industry? Join industry experts in discussing various current laws and others being considered around the country, and learn how these laws can affect the alcoholic beverage businesses and corresponding regulations.

Moderator: Maribel Delgado, Vice President and Deputy General Counsel, E&J Gallo Winery

Panelists: Richard Chesley, Manager, South Carolina Dept. of Health and Environmental Control
Scott DeFife, President, Glass Packaging Institute
Rachel Schneider, VP, Sustainability and Environmental Health & Safety, MolsonCoors
Brad Epperly, Shareholder and Lobbyist for Nyemaster Goode, P.C. (Des Moines, IA)
